Lanny Davis, Attorney for the Montgomery County Fraternal Order of Police, Challenges Roger Berliner, Montgomery County Council President, to Debate on Question B

Every legislative district and precinct organization has been invited to host this debate on Question B.

"I believe a high level debate on the facts about the current law that the County Council wants to overturn is important and something all Democrats should support," Lanny J. Davis, attorney for Montgomery County police and a former three-term Maryland National Democratic Committeeman and Chair of the DNC Eastern Regional Caucus, stated. "You are entitled to your opinions - but not to your own facts. Let's debate our differing opinions on the contents of the current law that has protected police and their families for 30 years before deciding whether to overturn it, by supporting Question B, or keep it in place, by voting against Question B."

As background, officials of the Maryland Democratic Party are considering recommending to Democratic party members whether they should vote to overturn the Montgomery County Council's stripping of police officers of certain of their collective bargaining rights, known as ballot question B.

Montgomery County Executive and County Council President have used false and misleading statements to aggressively lobby Democratic Party Leaders to support them in repealing effects bargaining from police officers. If successful, police officers will lose a 30-year right to bargain over the impact of the exercise of management rights in the workplace. The Montgomery County Fraternal Order of Police urges a vote "AGAINST" Question B.
